- charged iPad
- 3-ring binder for math only (a 1 or 1½ in. should be good)
- pencils (if you only like to use a pen, it must be blue or black ink with eraser or white-out)
- good erasers
- loose leaf paper
- dividers (5 tab package or make your own)
- scientific calculator Having a calculator can greatly help with homework and test prep. I recommend the TI-30X IIS (under $10 many places during Back-to-School sales) or a graphing calculator. We will be using the TI-Nspire CX in class, but it is a bit pricier so another good option is TI-84 Plus CE Silver Edition (or any TI-84). If you cannot get a graphing calculator, it is very understandable and will not hinder the learning process. I would recommend at least trying to get the TI-30X IIS scientific calculator if at all possible though. *Please understand that if students demonstrate a lack of ability to perform math operations by hand they may not be permitted to use a calculator until they get help from me with the basics.
